

W. Trevor Brooks received his PhD from South Dakota State University and is currently an Assistant Professor at Austin Peay State University. His research interests include rural to urban population trends, labor market trends, and secondary data analysis.

Douglas William Hume is an Associate Professor of Anthropology and Director of the Center for Applied Anthropology at Northern Kentucky University. His research interests include: applied cultural (cognitive/environmental) anthropology; anthropological methods and theory; agriculture, conservation, and ritual; behavior and folk knowledge; technology and pedagogy; Belize, Internet, Madagascar, and the United States.

Randi Ingram received her bachelor's degree from Austin Peay State University in December of 2013. She majored in sociology and minored in both environmental studies and family studies. Randi will be pursuing her master's and doctoral degrees in the near future.

Elizabeth Ehrhardt Mustaine is Professor and Chair of the Department of Sociology at the University of Central Florida. Her research focuses on issues of sex offender registration, violence against women and professional issues in academic sociology.

David Rands received his PhD from the University of Southern California and currently serves as the Director of the Asian Studies minor at Austin Peay State University. His research interests stem from the study of the development of Korean communities in Japan, where he utilized the theoretical model of function-based spatiality. Dr. Rands' work is included in two edited volumes and his monograph was recently published by Lexington Books. His primary research interests are the historically developed functions of spaces and their interactions in the contemporary world.

Richard Tewksbury is Professor of Justice Administration at the University of Louisville. His research focuses on issues of sex offender registration, deviance and professional issues in academic criminal justice. He is editor of Criminal Justice Studies.

Stephanie Zach received her Bachelor of the Arts in Anthropology with a minor in Honors from Northern Kentucky University. Her principal areas of interest are colonialism, religious structures, and mortuary ritual, and she has completed ethnographic and archaeological research on various cultural topics in Ecuador, Belize, and Fiji. She finished her undergraduate degree in May 2014, and aspires to pursue a graduate degree in Museum Acquisitions.